

Doctor backs healer's distant healing sent 6,000 miles

By Kano Baker

HEALER Carol Everett's abilities have been successfully measured by medical technicians, and the effects verified, by using thermal imaging cameras checking results in real time with a patient-to-healer distance of 6,000 miles.

Some years ago, Professor Yoshio Machi, of Tokyo's Denki University, tested Carol's healing abilities, which were confirmed by a doctor before and after healing.

Now Dr Enrique García Jiménez, who practises in Murcia, Spain, has likewise backed her gift concerning the latest tests involving the USA and Spain.

In a testimonial, Dr Enrique explained that he was asked "to check sets of thermal images taken during healing to observe and comment as a doctor on changes in the images over the healing period and to decide if that change was as a result of healing.

"There were no external influences other than the healing to make the changes that were observed...

"When asked about the results I witnessed at a distance, it was sufficient to confirm clearly that changes happened by means of Carol Everett's healing abilities.

"I have seen Carol's healing ability over a number of years now. Though I do not understand how it happens, there is evidence from results obtained to support that her healing somehow has a beneficial effect.

"Normally it is not possible to see this happening, but the thermal images from the tests allow it to be seen, as it has a direct influence on the patient."

During the 6,000-mile tests, three people received distant treatment from Carol, who was in her consulting room in Spain and used a video conferencing link.

A patient named Dante in America was suffering from low energy levels, problems with moods and a hernia in his stomach. A police officer, he resides near Phoenix, Arizona.

A sample of blood was taken from Dante's finger and squeezed into a tube, which Carol healed for twenty minutes. Later, the blood was rubbed onto Dante's back followed by more distant healing.

After the blood was rubbed onto his back, a thermal imaging camera detected changes, which continued. A thermal imaging technician said this could have resulted only from Carol's healing.

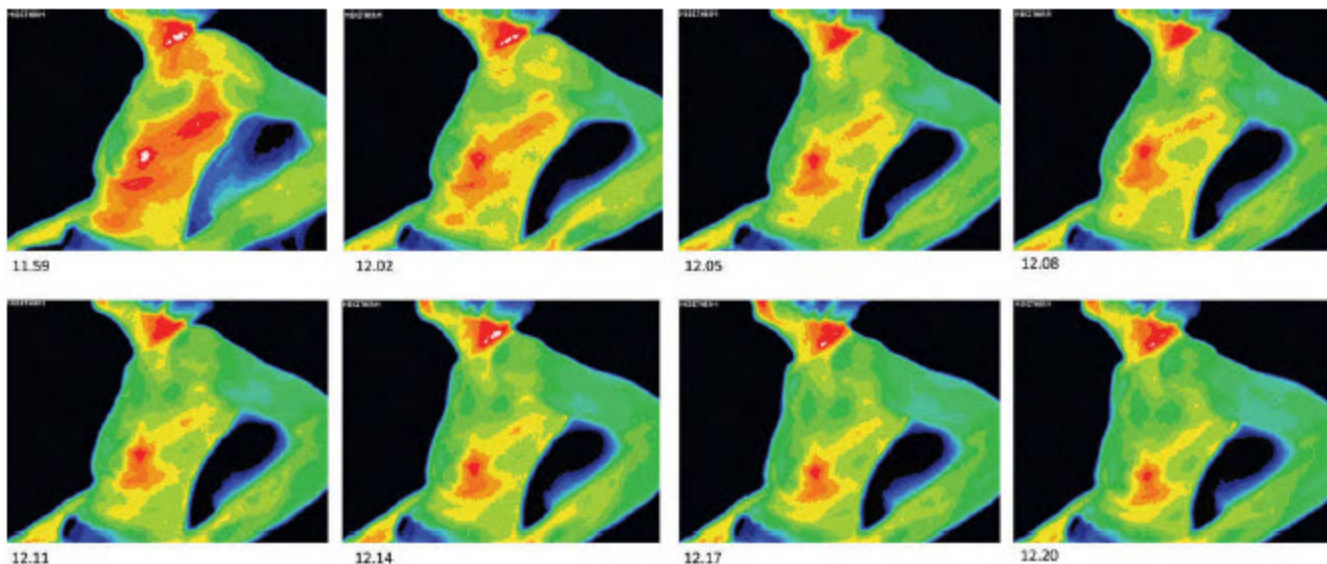

A second session, again using blood-type healing, was carried out with the same techniques, but with no blood sample. Carol used her mind, which had an even more intense result.

During treatment, Dante said that he "saw an orange light, which moved with a fluid motion in a horizontal figure of eight pattern. This was accompanied by a very pleasant peaceful feeling.

"I felt my abdominal region, which was the area of focus, become very warm. Since healing, I experienced a significant increase in energy, which lasted about two weeks.

"My abdomen feels tighter and warmer. I am calmer, more motivated and my outlook on life is certainly more positive."

The main candidate in the 6,000-mile tests was a patient called Roxanne, a legal secretary, who lives near Tucson, Arizona. She was also scanned thermally before and after healing. Carol was told that Roxanne

CAROL EVERETT gave healing to Roxanne, a patient in America, who was suffering from a lump in her breast with activity also affecting the lymph system under her arm. Explaining the images, which should be read left to right in each line, Carol commented:

"Thermal cameras were set up to give a best balance and show normal as greenish. Agitated unhealthy areas will show up as hotter (more red) and poor circulation areas as cooler. The above shows healing over 21 minutes.

"The affected areas change; the rest remains constant. The thermal images show a reduction in an area of agitation and activity during healing. There are no other influences present. Improvements were documented, but the tests were to measure the effect of energy healing at a distance. This was successful."

had a lump in her breast, but not exactly where it was.

After correctly identifying where the lump was, Carol added that inflammation was also present in Roxanne's lymph nodes and spleen. This was picked up previously, though not revealed to her.

After Carol's initial diagnosis, tests and a biopsy report showed aggressive breast cancer. Carol began healing for Roxanne.

As it is illegal for healers to claim cancer cures, Carol does not do so, but maintains that healing can help the immune system to cope with it.

Using the same virtual blood healing techniques employed previously, the aggressive cancer was shown to absorb Carol's healing and respond. The cancer was contained in one place, but not healed.

Roxanne had the lump removed and received chemotherapy. She is now walking three miles a day and swimming.

Before healing from Carol, blood tests were performed. Roxanne's results were at the high end of the acceptable range.

During healing, Roxanne "could feel the energy moving through my body." After the session, a thermogram showed improvement over a previous one, which was later confirmed by a doctor's analysis. A blood test likewise showed improved results.

Dr Paul Miller in America also sought Carol's help. For twenty years, he suffered from high blood pressure that could not be treated effectively. He also had heart fibrillation, vascular problems, poor circulation, shortness of breath, very painful knee problems, and he could barely walk.

Dr Miller said that after Carol's distant treatment, "my arterial fibrillation and shortness of breath have dissipated, and my blood pressure is 90/100. My bursitis (this causes joints to become painful, tender and swollen) is down to an occasional dull ache.

"I now am able to take a five-mile walk with my dog without having to focus on my breathing. My left ankle is still slightly swollen, but does not bother me.

"Consequently, my mood has improved. Thank you, Carol. You brought me back from the edge. Much love and gratitude."

Carol explained that when she sends distant healing, "I can sense my mind going through a long line of dimensions until I reach a place where there is no time and everything is at one with pure energy.

"Scientists know it exists and how to explain it, but not how to get into it. I don't know how to explain it, but I do know how to use this energy for good.

"Some things cannot be learned from books or courses. It happens with experience and growing inside yourself."

Carol is based in Exmouth, Devon. She now divides her time between living in the UK and southern Spain.
